Case No. 2:21-cv-08206-JAK-DFM

Honorable John A. Kronstadt

NOTICE OF MOTION AND SPECIAL MOTION TO STRIKE FIRST AMENDED COMPLAINT PURSUANT TO C.C.P. § 425.16

Date: May 9, 2022

Time: 8:30 a.m.

Crtrm: 10B

1 TO THE HONORABLE COURT AND ALL PARTIES AND THEIR 2 COUNSEL OF RECORD:

3 PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on Monday, May 9, 2022, at 8:30 a.m., or as 4 soon thereafter as counsel may be heard in-person or virtually in Courtroom 10B, the 5 Honorable John A. Kronstadt, presiding, located at 350 West First Street, Los 6 Angeles, California 90012, defendants Lions Gate Films Inc., Lions Gate 7 Entertainment Inc. and Starz Entertainment, LLC (“Starz”) (collectively, 8 “Defendants”), and each of them individually, will and hereby do move this Court for 9 an order dismissing the First Amended Complaint (“FAC”) filed by Plaintiff Marc 10 Elliot (“Plaintiff”) pursuant to California Code of Civil Procedure § 425.16 (“Section 11 425.16” or the “anti-SLAPP¹ statute”), using the motion to dismiss standards of 12 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6), and striking each cause of action, in whole 13 or in part, from the FAC with prejudice and without leave to amend.

14 This Motion is made following a conference of counsel pursuant to Local 15 Rule of Court 7-3 which took place on January 21, 2022.

16 Each cause of action in the First Amended Complaint is based on Defendants’ 17 speech and alleged conduct in furtherance of speech in connection with matters of 18 public interest, and each falls within the scope of Section 425.16(e). As such, the 19 burden shifts to Plaintiff to establish a probability of prevailing on those claims.
20 C.C.P. § 425.16(b)(1). Plaintiff cannot satisfy his burden as a matter of law.
21 Plaintiff’s causes of action, and portions thereof, should be dismissed and stricken as 22 a matter of law for the following reasons:

- 23 • The first cause of action for defamation per se and the second cause of 24 action for defamation by implication each fail as a matter of law, in 25 whole or in part, because:

26
27 ¹ SLAPP is an acronym that stands for “Strategic Lawsuits Against Public 28 Participation.”

- Defendants' limited television series (the "Series"), which is the basis for the FAC and is judicially noticeable, does not state, either explicitly or by reasonable or clear implication, anything defamatory about Plaintiff; and/or
- The allegedly defamatory statements and implications are not actionable because they do not convey verifiable statements of fact but are instead constitutionally protected opinion and/or hyperbole.
- Plaintiff's third cause of action for appropriation of name or likeness, fourth cause of action for false light and fifth cause of action for intentional infliction of emotional distress each fail as a matter of law, in whole or in part, because:
 - They are duplicative of Plaintiff's defamation claims and must be dismissed;
 - They fail for the same reasons the defamation claims fail; and
 - The third cause of action for appropriation of name or likeness also fails because Plaintiff's name and image were used in an expressive work (the Series) and not for an exclusively commercial purpose.

This Motion is based on: this Notice; the attached Memorandum of Points and Authorities; the concurrently filed Request for Judicial Notice with Exhibits 1–6; the concurrently filed Lodging and Notice of Lodging of Exhibit 1; all pleadings and documents on file in this action; and such further judicially noticeable evidence or argument as may be presented at the hearing on this Motion.

For these reasons, Defendants respectfully request that this Court dismiss and strike Plaintiff's FAC, and each cause of action therein, with prejudice and without leave to amend.

1 Defendants also request that the Court enter an award of attorneys' fees and 2 costs pursuant to California Code of Civil Procedure § 425.16(c).²

1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 Plaintiff Marc Elliot was and is a devotee of NXIVM, a “self-help” 3 organization that has frequently been called “cult-like,” whose most senior leaders 4 were recently convicted of serious federal crimes, including sex trafficking.
5 Defendant Starz produced a four-part television documentary series about NXIVM, 6 Seduced: Inside the NXIVM Cult (the “Series”), chronicling the group’s scams and 7 nefarious activities, including those perpetrated by NXIVM founder Keith Raniere, 8 who is currently serving a 120-year sentence in federal prison. Plaintiff, who touts 9 his international fame, takes issue with 45 seconds out of the four-hour Series. The 10 Series depicts him as one of NXIVM’s “success stories,” who, with NXIVM’s help, 11 overcame Tourette Syndrome and then served as a NXIVM spokesperson.

12 The Series uses experts and firsthand accounts to recount the profoundly 13 damaging conduct of NXIVM, Raniere and other group leaders, but nowhere does the 14 Series state or imply that Plaintiff – unlike other NXIVM leaders – engaged in any 15 criminal or otherwise wrongful behavior. Nevertheless, Plaintiff alleges that because 16 of the proximity of his fleeting portrayals to statements about NXIVM’s leaders, 17 particularly Raniere, he, too, is portrayed badly. But none of the purportedly 18 defamatory implications alleged by Plaintiff is reasonable or clear as a matter of law.

19 Defendants move pursuant to California Code of Civil Procedure § 425.16, the 20 anti-SLAPP statute, to dismiss Plaintiff’s First Amended Complaint and each of its 21 claims. Defendants ask the Court to take judicial notice of the Series, certain court 22 records and the existence of media reports, as the Court would do on a motion to 23 dismiss. Defendants easily satisfy the first step in the anti-SLAPP analysis because 24 each claim arises from Defendants’ speech on matters of public interest. The burden 25 then shifts to Plaintiff to demonstrate a probability of prevailing on his claims, which 26 he cannot satisfy as the Series makes no defamatory statements directly or by 27 implication about Plaintiff. Even if there were such implications, they would all be 28 protected speech. Plaintiff’s ancillary claims for false light, emotional distress and 1 appropriation of likeness likewise fail as a matter of law. As such, Defendants’ anti-2 SLAPP motion should be granted in full.

3 II. STATEMENT OF PERTINENT FACTS

4 A. The NXIVM Organization and Criminal Conviction of its 5 Leadership.

6 NXIVM was a purported self-help organization and the subject of a high-7 profile criminal prosecution in the Eastern District of New York for federal 8 offenses, including sex trafficking, forced labor and racketeering. See U.S. v.
 9 Raniere, 384 F. Supp. 3d 282, 292 (E.D.N.Y. 2019). Prosecutors focused on a 10 secret society under the NXIVM umbrella called DOS. Id. at 293. Keith Raniere, 11 NXIVM’s leader, directed a hierarchy of women to engage in sex acts, manual 12 labor, and skin branding in exchange for blackmail and other compensation. See 13 id. The women recruited as “slaves” into DOS were active members of NXIVM.
 14 Id. In 2019, Raniere was convicted on all charges and sentenced to 120 years in 15 prison. Request for Judicial Notice (“RJN”), Ex. 2 (docket report). Five other 16 senior NXIVM members pleaded guilty and received varying sentences. See id.

17 Prior to the revelations about DOS, NXIVM was known as a paid 18 membership organization that offered “self-improvement” seminars. Keith 19 Raniere and Nancy Salzman designed NXIVM’s curricula, outlined the 20 organizational structure, and defined its ideology. See FAC ¶ 20. NXIVM’s entry-21 level Executive Success Programs (“ESP’s”) aimed to foster “emotional 22 intelligence.” See FAC ¶ 21. Two separate training programs, JNESS Tracks and 23 SOP, or “Society of Protectors,” examined gender roles, as viewed by Raniere.
 24 See FAC ¶¶ 41–44. Individuals who successfully completed different modules 25 could climb the NXIVM hierarchy, eventually earning income from recruiting and 26 the fees other members paid. See FAC ¶¶ 26, 27, 32.

1 B. Public Interest in NXIVM.

2 NXIVM and Raniere have long attracted public interest and media attention.
 3 Several prominent publications have conducted deep-dive investigations of 4 Raniere and NXIVM over the years—Forbes in 2003, Vanity Fair in 2010, the 5 New York Times in 2017—and the Albany Times Union extensively covered the 6 Albany-based NXIVM for decades. RJN, Ex. 3. Following the New York Times' 7 blockbuster exposé on women branded with a cauterizing pen, and thanks to the 8 determination of actress Catherine Oxenberg (mother of former NXIVM member 9 India Oxenberg), NXIVM and Raniere became the subject of a media frenzy 10 starting in 2017. See, e.g., RJN, Ex. 4. Federal prosecutors filed suit and arrested 11 Raniere in 2018, and the final NXIVM defendant was sentenced in late 2021. See 12 RJN, Ex. 2 (docket report). The foregoing events generated broad media coverage, 13 several podcasts, and at least two documentary television series, including, 14 ultimately, the one at issue in this case. See, e.g., RJN, Exs. 1, 4.

15 C. Plaintiff's Connection and Continued Dedication to NXIVM.

16 Plaintiff Marc Elliot was a prominent and active member of NXIVM. FAC
 17 ¶¶ 22–37. Plaintiff first joined NXIVM in 2010 and claimed that NXIVM's ESP 18 trainings helped him overcome his symptoms of Tourette Syndrome. FAC ¶¶ 22– 19 24. He rose through NXIVM's ranks, becoming a coach, advancing to proctor, and 20 earning his living through NXIVM. FAC ¶¶ 26, 27, 32. Starting in 2014, Plaintiff 21 became a public face for what NXIVM's trainings could accomplish, both within 22 the group and in recruiting campaigns with the public. FAC ¶¶ 27–32.

23 Instead of leaving NXIVM following the revelations in 2017 that Raniere 24 had led a sex trafficking and forced labor ring, Plaintiff, through his own 25 allegations and judicially noticeable material, continued to support NXIVM and 26 added his voice to the controversy even after Raniere's conviction. See FAC ¶¶

33–37; see also RJN, Ex. 2 [Dkt. 925] at 33–36 (Raniere sentencing memo); Ex. 5.³

D. Defendants’ Documentary Series About NXIVM and Raniere.

Seduced: Inside the NXIVM Cult is a four-part documentary television series from Starz that examines the personal experience of India Oxenberg, a former member of NXIVM, who suffered abuse at the direction of Raniere. See FAC ¶ 38; RJN, Ex. 1. The Series features original audio and video recordings from NXIVM events, interviews with first-hand witnesses, news coverage of NXIVM and the criminal trial, commentary from outside experts opining about NXIVM, and clips illustrating the commentary. See RJN, Ex. 1; see also, e.g., FAC ¶¶ 46, 47, 51. The experts mostly focus on the psychology and practices of cult-like groups, drawing parallels between NXIVM and other groups. See id.

Plaintiff is only briefly featured in the Series, in Episodes One, Two, and Four. See id. He is not the focus of the Series. *See id.*⁴ In Episode One, the documentary shows how ESP trainings opened with video testimonials from Plaintiff, touting how NXIVM and ESP help him beat Tourette’s. See RJN, Ex. 1, Ep. 1 at 10:07. In Episode Two, the Series shows various clips from NXIVM trainings and testimonials that include Plaintiff. See RJN, Ex. 1, Ep. 2 at 20:23–40:39; FAC ¶¶ 41–62. Episode Two also shows Plaintiff with Dr. Brandon Porter promoting the potential of NXIVM trainings to overcome neurological issues. The Series then covered Dr. Porter’s other work with NXIVM: conducting “fright experiments” where graphically violent videos were shown to women to track their ⁴ Episode One of the Series explores NXIVM’s recruitment strategies and how India Oxenberg became involved with the group. Episode Two explores NXIVM’s curriculum, ideology, and indoctrination. Episode Three delves into the practices of the DOS secret society and India Oxenberg’s personal experience as a “slave” to “master” actress Allison Mack under “grandmaster” Raniere. Episode Four covers the public reaction to Raniere’s criminal activities, Catherine Oxenberg’s efforts to rescue her daughter, and the trial and conviction of Raniere and NXIVM leadership. See RJN, Exs. 1, 4.

1 reactions. See id.

2 Episode Four only briefly depicts Plaintiff in the epilogue. See RJN, Ex. 1, 3 Ep. 4 at 1:18:17. The Series shows a short video featuring Plaintiff with other 4 former NXIVM members dancing under Raniere’s prison window. Onscreen, a 5 chyron identifies Plaintiff as “Marc Elliot NXIVM ‘Proctor.’” See id. Also in the 6 epilogue, the Series notes that Dr. Brandon Porter had his medical license revoked.
7 See id.; see also RJN, Ex. 6 (NY State license record). Plaintiff is neither depicted 8 nor discussed in Episode Three or the parts of Episode Four that discuss NXIVM’s 9 criminal conduct. See RJN, Ex. 1. Unlike other members of NXIVM, Plaintiff is 10 not identified in the Series as having been criminally prosecuted. Id.

11 E. Plaintiff’s Allegations About the Series.

12 Plaintiff takes issue with a total of 45 seconds of statements and purported 13 implications in Episode Two of the Series. First, Plaintiff complains about the 14 purported juxtaposition of his testimonial about NXIVM trainings on “how to relate 15 to women” with Raniere’s vulgar statements about men’s “primitive” desires to 16 “conquer” women. FAC ¶¶ 43–45. Second, Plaintiff alleges that commentary from 17 cult experts Steven Hassan and Rick Ross discussing “coercive” tactics to “foster 18 obedience,” referencing ISIS and Al-Qaeda, is defamatory because their commentary 19 followed a brief segment when Plaintiff’s face was onscreen. FAC ¶¶ 46–50. Third, 20 Plaintiff alleges that expert critiques of former Dr. Porter’s “fright experiments” 21 defamed Plaintiff because the commentary continued while Plaintiff was briefly 22 depicted onscreen with Porter. FAC ¶¶ 51–54. Plaintiff acknowledges that he 23 worked with and promoted Porter through his campaign addressing Tourette 24 syndrome. FAC ¶ 51. Fourth, Plaintiff alleges that a segment showing Plaintiff 25 standing in the audience of various seminars with Raniere is defamatory because he 26 was not standing while Raniere said the precise words spoken in that clip. FAC ¶¶ 27 55–66. Finally, Plaintiff takes issue with Ross’s opining on the violent actions that 28 other cult-like groups have taken, and Plaintiff alleges that the Series makes it

1 “appear as if [Raniere] is giving Plaintiff specific instructions to kill someone 2 specifically.” See id.

3 III. THE ANTI-SLAPP STATUTE APPLIES TO PLAINTIFF’S CLAIMS.

4 A. California’s Anti-SLAPP Statute Applies in Federal Court.

5 The Ninth Circuit has made clear that California’s anti-SLAPP statute, C.C.P.
6 § 425.16 (“Section 425.16”), applies in federal diversity cases with state law claims 7 because the statute was “crafted to serve an interest not directly addressed by the 8 Federal Rules: the protection of ‘the constitutional rights of freedom of speech and 9 petition for redress of grievances.’” U.S. ex rel. Newsham v. Lockheed Missiles & 10 Space Co., Inc., 190 F.3d 963, 972–73 (9th Cir. 1999); see also Herring Networks, 11 Inc. v. Maddow, 8 F.4th 1148, 1155 (9th Cir. 2021). Plaintiff alleges that this Court 12 has diversity jurisdiction and only alleges state law claims. See FAC ¶¶ 8, 70–129.

13 B. The Anti-SLAPP Statute Is Construed Broadly.

14 The anti-SLAPP statute was enacted to check “a disturbing increase in lawsuits 15 brought primarily to chill the valid exercise of the constitutional right of freedom of 16 speech and petition,” and it is to be “construed broadly.” C.C.P. § 425.16(a). The 17 law creates a “two-step process for determining” whether a cause of action should be 18 stricken under Section 425.16. Varian Med. Sys., Inc. v. Delfino, 35 Cal. 4th 180, 19 192 (2005); C.C.P. § 425.16(b)(1).

20 In the first step, the court decides “whether the defendant has made a threshold 21 showing that . . . the act or acts of which the plaintiff complains were taken ‘in 22 furtherance of the [defendant]’s right of petition or free speech . . . in connection with 23 a public issue.’” Equilon Enters. v. Consumer Cause, Inc., 29 Cal. 4th 53, 67 (2002); 24 Herring Networks, 8 F.4th at 1155 (same). Subdivision (e) of the anti-SLAPP statute 25 covers any “conduct in furtherance of the exercise of the constitutional right of 26 petition or the constitutional right of free speech in connection with a public issue or 27
28

1 an issue of public interest.” C.C.P. § 425.16(e)(4).⁵ “If the court determines that 2 relief is sought based on allegations arising from activity protected by [Section 3 425.16], the second step is reached.” Baral v. Schnitt, 1 Cal. 5th 376, 396 (2016).

4 “If the defendant satisfies” the first step, “the burden then shifts to the plaintiff 5 to establish a reasonable probability that it will prevail on its claim in order for that 6 claim to survive dismissal.” Herring Networks, 8 F.4th at 1155 (cleaned up).⁶ “The 7 district court must grant the defendant’s motion and dismiss the complaint if the 8 plaintiff presents an insufficient legal basis for the claims or no reasonable jury could 9 find for the plaintiff.” Herring Networks, 8 F.4th at 1155 (internal quotation marks 10 omitted). The anti-SLAPP statute must be construed “broadly” to further the purpose 11 of “allowing for early dismissal of meritless First Amendment cases aimed at chilling 12 expression through costly, time-consuming litigation.” Id. (cleaned up).

13 IV. THE FIRST STEP IN THE ANTI-SLAPP ANALYSIS IS SATISFIED.

14 A defendant need only show that its alleged conduct “fits one of the four 15 categories spelled out in section 425.16, subdivision (e).” Navellier v. Sletten, 29 16 Cal. 4th 82, 88 (2002) (emphasis added). The public interest requirement in Section 17 425.16(e) must be “construed broadly so as to encourage participation by all 18 segments of our society in vigorous public debate related to issues of public interest.”
 19 Gilbert v. Sykes, 147 Cal. App. 4th 13, 23 (2007). “[A]n issue of public interest” 20 under Section 425.16(e) “is any issue in which the public is interested.” Nygård, Inc.
 21 v. Uusi-Kerttula, 159 Cal. App. 4th 1027, 1042 (2008). In determining whether an 22 issue is a matter of public interest, courts may consider “whether the subject of the 23

24 ⁵ The anti-SLAPP statute may be applied to the types of claims alleged by Plaintiff 25 here. See, e.g., Jackson v. Mayweather, 10 Cal. App. 5th 1240, 1264–66 (2017) 26 (applying anti-SLAPP statute to claims of defamation, false light and intentional infliction of emotional distress); Stewart v. Rolling Stone LLC, 181 Cal. App. 4th 664, 692 (2010) (applying anti-SLAPP statute to appropriation of likeness claims).

27 ⁶ The Court may strike portions of claims under Section 425.16. City of Colton v.
 28 Singletary, 206 Cal. App. 4th 751, 774 (2012) (“a portion of a cause of action may be stricken if it falls within anti-SLAPP protections”).

1 speech or activity was a person or entity in the public eye or could affect large 2 numbers of people beyond the direct participants; and whether the activity occur[red] 3 in the context of an ongoing controversy, dispute or discussion.” FilmOn.com Inc. v.
 4 DoubleVerify Inc., 7 Cal. 5th 133, 145 (2019) (cleaned up).

5 The Ninth Circuit has held that courts “must construe . . . ‘issue of public 6 interest’ in Section 425.16(e)(4) broadly” to include any “topic of widespread, public 7 interest.” Hilton v. Hallmark Cards, 599 F.3d 894, 906 (9th Cir. 2010) (finding 8 public interest in greeting card poking fun at socialite Paris Hilton); see also 9 Traditional Cat Ass’n, Inc. v. Gilbreath, 118 Cal. App. 4th 392, 397–98 (2004) 10 (online posts regarding cat breeding were in connection with a matter of public 11 interest “[g]iven the controversy surrounding the parties’ dispute and its evident 12 notoriety in the cat breeding community”). The fact that the content may also be 13 entertaining does not change this result. See, e.g., Sarver v. Chartier, 813 F.3d 891, 14 901–02 (9th Cir. 2016) (claims concerning a film fell within Section 425.16(e)(4)); 15 Tamkin v. CBS Broad., Inc., 193 Cal. App. 4th 133, 143 (2011) (same regarding 16 television show). As in Sarver and Tamkin, the Series is speech, each cause of action 17 arises from the Series, see, e.g., FAC ¶¶ 70, 84, 98, 111, 115, 121–123, and the public 18 interest component of Section 425.16(e)(4) is easily satisfied.

19 First, NXIVM is and was a controversial program, purportedly offering 20 opportunities for self-help, while, in reality, serving as what the jury found to be a 21 dangerous vehicle for oppressive conduct and sex trafficking. See FAC ¶¶ 33, 37; 22 RJN, Ex. 2 [Dkt. 914] at 41. Courts will “broadly construe” what is considered an 23 “ongoing controversy, dispute or discussion.” Cross v. Cooper, 197 Cal. App. 4th 24 357, 383 (2011). The Ninth Circuit has held that a documentary series about “some 25 of America’s most notorious gangs and the efforts of law enforcement working to 26 stop them” was a matter of public interest. Doe v. Gangland Prods., Inc., 730 F.3d 27 946, 951, 955 (9th Cir. 2013) (“Gangland”) (internal quotation marks removed). In 28 Church of Scientology v. Wollersheim, 42 Cal. App. 4th 628 (1996), the court held 1 that matters of public interest can “include activities that involve private persons and 2 entities” such as the activities of the Church of Scientology. Id. at 650–51 (noting 3 that “media coverage” of the Church of Scientology supported a finding of public 4 interest), disapproved on other grounds by Equilon Enters., 29 Cal. 4th at 68 n.5.

5 NXIVM has long been a matter of public interest, and that interest only 6 intensified following the 2017 sex trafficking revelations and subsequent criminal 7 prosecutions of NXIVM’s leadership. FAC ¶¶ 33–37. From 1998 to 2018, NXIVM 8 was a large, high-profile organization that operated trainings “internationally” with 9 “thousands of NXIVM students,” all under the leadership and vision of Keith 10 Raniere. FAC ¶¶ 20, 35, 53. NXIVM has garnered intense media attention, starting 11 decades ago in local and national news but exploding following the 2017 sex 12 trafficking revelations. See RJN Exs. 3, 4, see also FAC ¶ 33. As with the Church of 13 Scientology, the significant media coverage supports a finding of public interest.
 14 Church of Scientology, 42 Cal. App. 4th at 450–51. And the high-profile federal 15 prosecution to stop NXIVM and Raniere falls squarely in the public interest. See 16 Gangland, 730 F.3d at 951, 955.

17 Second, Plaintiff Marc Elliot is a limited purpose public figure and therefore a 18 matter of public interest in his own right. To be clear, Defendants do not need to 19 show “an independent public interest in Plaintiff’s identity.” Gangland, 730 F.3d at 20 955 (Defendants did not need to show independent interest in anonymous plaintiff’s 21 identity).⁷ Nevertheless, Plaintiff and his activities are a matter of public interest, and 22 the anti-SLAPP statute also applies to matters concerning public figures or “a person 23 or entity in the public eye.” FilmOn.com, 7 Cal. 5th at 145. A plaintiff can reveal

 25 ⁷ See also M.G. v. Time Warner, 89 Cal. App. 4th 623, 629 (2001) (public interest did 26 not need to be in specific victims of child molestation where “the general topic of 27 child molestation in youth sports” was an issue of public interest); Terry v. Davis 28 Community Church, 131 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 1547–48 (2005) (same for “broad topic” of “protection of children in church youth programs”); Tamkin, 193 Cal. App. 4th at 144 (“We find no requirement in the anti-SLAPP statute that the plaintiff’s persona be a matter of public interest”).

1 himself to be “a person . . . in the public eye” by virtue of the allegations in his 2 complaint. Nadel v. Regents of the Univ. of Calif., 28 Cal. App. 4th 1251, 1270 3 (1994); see also Thomas v. Los Angeles Times Comms. LLC, 189 F. Supp. 2d 1005, 4 1011 (C.D. Cal. 2002) (holding the same in the context of an anti-SLAPP motion).
 5 Plaintiff is a public figure in his own right, and also because he “thrust [himself] to 6 the forefront of particular public controversies in order to influence the resolution of 7 the issues involved.” Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc., 418 U.S. 323, 345 (1974).

8 Plaintiff describes himself as a “nationally recognized public speaker.” FAC 9 ¶¶ 14–32. From 2010 to 2014, Plaintiff rose from being a NXIVM member to one 10 of its leaders and was active on the inspirational speaker circuit. FAC ¶¶ 22–27.
 11 Once he assumed leadership levels within NXIVM, the group developed a special 12 project under him, promoted his story to thousands of people who attended ESP 13 trainings, filmed a documentary about how NXIVM changed his journey with 14 Tourette’s, and promoted the documentary at international film festivals. FAC ¶¶ 15 27–32. Plaintiff consistently appeared in the public eye on behalf of NXIVM and 16 acted as the face for NXIVM’s potential. See Thomas, 189 F. Supp. 2d at 1101.

17 Third, Plaintiff’s prominent involvement in NXIVM, and his ongoing and 18 outspoken support for NXIVM founder and convicted sex trafficker Keith Raniere, 19 are also matters of public interest. FAC ¶¶ 36–37; RJN, Ex. 2 [Dkt. 925] at 33–36, 20 Ex. 5. Plaintiff voluntarily inserted himself into the controversy surrounding 21 NXIVM. Seelig v. Infinity Broad. Corp., 97 Cal. App. 4th 798, 807–08 (2002) (“[b]y 22 having chosen to participate as a contestant” in reality tv show, “plaintiff voluntarily 23 subjected herself to inevitable scrutiny”). Even where a person is only tangentially 24 related to a famous person or entity, their activities can be a matter of public interest.
 25 Hall v. Time Warner, Inc., 153 Cal. App. 4th 1337, 1347 (2007) (public interest in 26 Marlon Brando’s former housekeeper who was a beneficiary in his will).

27 Since NXIVM officially closed operations, Plaintiff has continued to advocate 28 publicly on behalf of Raniere and the organization. See FAC ¶¶ 36, 37; see also RJN,

1 Ex. 5. Plaintiff advocated in favor of reducing Raniere’s sentence. RJN, Ex. 2 [Dkt.
 2 925] at 33–36, Ex. 5. Plaintiff has thrust himself into the forefront of controversies
 3 surrounding both NXIVM and Raniere’s criminal conviction, and thereby voluntarily 4 subjected himself to increased scrutiny. See Gertz, 418 U.S. at 345; Seelig, 97 Cal.
 5 App. 4th at 807–08.

6 Any of the foregoing is a more significant topic of public interest than a 7 greeting card poking fun at socialite Paris Hilton. Hilton, 599 F.3d at 906 (finding 8 public interest under anti-SLAPP statute). Defendants satisfy step one in the analysis.

9 V. PLAINTIFF CANNOT SATISFY HIS BURDEN ON THE SECOND 10 STEP IN THE ANTI-SLAPP ANALYSIS.

11 “If the defendant meets its burden, the burden shifts to plaintiff to demonstrate 12 a probability of prevailing on the merits of each of plaintiff’s claims.” Gangland, 730 13 F.3d at 953. Plaintiff cannot satisfy his burden on step two for multiple independent 14 reasons, and his claims should therefore be stricken without leave to amend.

15 A. Plaintiff’s Two Defamation Claims Fail as a Matter of Law.

16 Plaintiff’s first cause of action for defamation per se and his second cause of 17 action for defamation by implication both fail for multiple reasons.

18 1. Defendants Neither Directly Published Nor Reasonably Implied
 19 Anything Defamatory About Plaintiff.

20 A review of the FAC and the judicially noticeable Series reveals that 21 Defendants made no defamatory statements or implications about Plaintiff.

22 Publication is an element of a defamation claim. Wong v. Tai Jing, 189 Cal.
 23 App. 4th 1354, 1369 (2010). Plaintiff’s FAC does not allege that the Series directly 24 published any purportedly defamatory statements about Plaintiff. See generally FAC.
 25 For example, nowhere does the Series expressly call Plaintiff a potential murderer or 26 rapist. Id. And the FAC makes no such allegations. In all circumstances, Plaintiff 27 alleges that the purportedly harmful communications about Plaintiff stem from 28

1 implications created by the Series. See id. at ¶¶ 2, 40, 41, 43, 45, 46, 51, 57, 59, 62.

2 However, the implications alleged by Plaintiff are not reasonable as a matter of law.

3 The United States Supreme Court recognizes “a profound national commitment 4 to the principle that debate on public issues should be uninhibited, robust and wide-5 open[.]” New York Times Co. v. Sullivan, 376 U.S. 254, 270 (1964). For this reason, 6 courts set a very high standard for showing that a defamatory implication reasonably 7 can be found. For example, in Forsher v. Bugliosi, 26 Cal. 3d 792, 803 (1980), the 8 book Helter Skelter, recounted the infamous Manson Family murders and suggested 9 that Manson’s followers carried out retaliatory murders after Manson’s incarceration, 10 including the murder of Ronald Hughes. The book asserted that the plaintiff and his 11 female companion drove Hughes to a desolate campground near where he was later 12 found murdered; that the police never verified plaintiff’s alibi; and that the plaintiff’s 13 companion later was murdered, too, in part because she knew too much about 14 Hughes’ killing. Id. at 796–802. Although the book repeatedly named the plaintiff 15 and seemingly linked him to the murder, the California Supreme Court held that “the 16 book neither expressly nor by fair implication charges [the plaintiff] with killing or 17 aiding or abetting the killing of Hughes.” Id. at 805. Courts “must refrain from 18 scrutinizing what is not said to find a defamatory meaning which the [publication] 19 does not convey to a lay reader.” Id. at 803 (cleaned up).

20 The California Court of Appeal also rejected a defamation-by-implication 21 claim in Alszev v. Home Box Office, 67 Cal. App. 4th 1456 (1998). In Alszev, 22 plaintiff operated a business with a partner with the nickname “Cookie.” Id. at 1459.
23 The partnership dissolved and Cookie went on to start a business called “J & J 24 Beepers,” and plaintiff began doing business as “J & J The King of Beepers.” Id. In 25 a television documentary, someone tells a producer that “a person named Cookie,” 26 who “‘operates’ a beeper store called ‘J & J Beep,’” and harmed people. Id. at 1459, 27 1461-62. The documentary shows the producer searching for “Cookie,” and while he 28 is doing so, the video shows one of plaintiff’s billboards “which displays the title ‘J &

1 J King of Beepers,” and focuses briefly on plaintiff’s face while the producer 2 narrates, “With Cookie on my mind, I imagined I saw him everywhere.” Id. at 1462.
3 Plaintiff sued for libel. Despite the video editing, the court ruled that “the 4 documentary, taken as a whole, does not support the reasonable inference that” 5 plaintiff was “Cookie.” Id. at 1463.

6 In another case, the California Court of Appeal emphasized that a “defamatory 7 statement must be found, if at all, in a reading of the publication as a whole,” as 8 “[d]efamation actions cannot be based on snippets taken out of context.” Balzaga v.
9 Fox News Network, LLC, 173 Cal. App. 4th 1325, 1338 (2009) (internal quotation 10 marks omitted). In Balzaga, a news segment showed a “Wanted” poster with the 11 plaintiffs’ photos and the caption “MANHUNT AT THE BORDER,” which the 12 plaintiffs alleged falsely implied that they were “wanted” by law enforcement. Id. at 13 1329. “To establish a defamation in this case,” the court held, “plaintiffs had the 14 burden of making a predicate showing the caption meant that police officials were 15 conducting a manhunt for plaintiffs.” Id. at 1342. The court stated that “when the 16 alleged false statement is contained in a television broadcast, the court must examine 17 the statement in the context with the remainder of the news report to determine if it 18 has the meaning attributed to it by the plaintiff.” Id. at 1339. And, the court held, 19 “[i]f no reasonable viewer could have reasonably understood the statement in the 20 alleged defamatory sense, the matter may be decided as a question of law.” Id.
21 Applying those principles, the court concluded that “a person who viewed the Fox 22 News broadcast would not have reasonably concluded that law enforcement officers 23 were conducting a ‘manhunt’ for plaintiffs.” Id. “The story,” the court continued, 24 “was not a single photograph; rather it was a four-minute telecast of many different 25 images and concepts. The audio did not contain any suggestion that the police were 26 conducting an organized search for [plaintiffs] at the border.” Id. at 1340. Since the 27 plaintiffs failed to substantiate, as a matter of law, that their interpretation of the 28 broadcast could reasonably be implied, the trial court granted and the Court of Appeal

1 affirmed, Fox News’s anti-SLAPP motion, concluding that “a defamation claim fails 2 as a matter of law if the publication is not reasonably susceptible of a defamatory 3 meaning and cannot be reasonably understood in the defamatory sense pleaded by the 4 plaintiffs.” Id. at 1342–43 (cleaned up); see also Monterey Plaza Hotel v. HERE 5 Local 483, 69 Cal. App. 4th 1057, 1065 (1999) (also affirming the grant of an anti-6 SLAPP motion because “when the challenged statement is considered within the 7 context of the entire broadcast, no reasonable viewer could have reasonably 8 interpreted it in such a way”).

9 Plaintiff takes issue not with the accuracy of the Series or any association with 10 Raniere’s crimes but instead with the editing and commentary from outside experts 11 that critique NXIVM’s ideology. The Series does not name or show Plaintiff during 12 the segments about criminal conduct. RJN, Ex. 1; Cf. FAC ¶ 40. Indeed, Plaintiff 13 cannot point to a single false statement about him personally—there is no dispute that 14 he was a member of NXIVM and involved in recruitment to NXIVM. See FAC ¶¶ 15 26–32; RJN, Ex. 5; Cf. FAC ¶ 40. Rather, he claims that a total of 45 seconds where 16 he appeared in the Series were “misleading” and “insinuate[d]” Plaintiff was 17 “equated” to negative characters and aspects of NXIVM. FAC ¶ 2. Plaintiff 18 overreaches to read unreasonable implications into the Series.

19 First, the implication Plaintiff alleges regarding his testimonial on “how to 20 relate to women” is unreasonable. FAC ¶¶ 40–45. Plaintiff takes issue with the fact 21 that his testimonial praising NXIVM’s gender training directly follows clips of 22 Raniere discussing male “impulses” in a vulgar manner. FAC ¶¶ 43–45. He alleges 23 that a segment editing together testimonials and excerpts from NXIVM’s trainings on 24 gender roles “imply that Plaintiff supported and encouraged sexual violence and 25 misconduct against women.” FAC ¶ 45.

26 Such an implication is unreasonable. Plaintiff’s testimonial is depicted in an 27 obviously separate setting: outside, in a formal interview, during the day. See RJN, 28 Ex. 1, Ep. 2 at 20:24. The clips of Raniere discussing “primitive” “beasties” who

1 want to “conquer a woman” are depicted indoors, at night, during a session. Id. at 2 20:12. It is unreasonable to claim that the editing implies that Plaintiff was directly 3 referring to Raniere’s “conquer a woman” comments. In Plaintiff’s own words, his 4 takeaway was “how to relate to women,” a topic the Series also addresses in the 5 minutes before Plaintiff’s clip. See RJN, Ex. 1, Ep. 2 at 13:18, 20:24. Even 6 Plaintiff’s own allegations reflect that Plaintiff attended NXIVM’s various gender 7 trainings, had a positive takeaway from his training, and remained an active advocate 8 of NXIVM afterward. See FAC ¶¶ 35–37, 42. The segment on gender role trainings 9 began with other men’s testimonials and closed with Plaintiff’s, reflecting positive 10 reactions to NXIVM’s gender trainings. See RJN, Ex. 1, Ep. 2 at 13:18, 20:24.

11 Nor is it reasonable to draw an implication that by simply depicting an 12 individual attending a training on Raniere’s theories of man’s nature the Series is 13 implying that the individual “supported sexual violence and misconduct against 14 women” or “equate[s]” to being a “rapist.” Cf. FAC ¶¶ 44, 84. The Series took 15 excerpts of Raniere’s actual words to demonstrate his gendered ideology, and later 16 covered how Raniere did, in fact, sexually abuse women, an offense for which he is 17 now serving 120 years in federal prison. FAC ¶ 44.⁸ The Series accurately portrayed 18 Raniere as an abuser—it made no implications about Plaintiff.

19 Second, Plaintiff’s allegation that expert opinion commentary on indoctrination 20 techniques implies Plaintiff is “the likes of ISIS and Al-Qaeda” is unreasonable.
 21 FAC ¶ 50. The segment following Plaintiff’s testimonial clip shifts to expert 22 commentary discussing how groups “foster obedience.” FAC ¶ 46; see RJN, Ex. 1, 23 Ep. 2 at 20:36. Interspersed with images of the experts are clips of a NXIVM gym 24 training with men (not including Plaintiff) hitting each other in the face, along with a 25 clip of an ISIS child soldier discussing how he and his comrades were forced to 26 “beat[] each other” to build strength. RJN, Ex. 1, Ep. 2 at 2:57, 21:01. Plaintiff is not

27
 28 ⁸ Even so, the FAC never decries Raniere’s wrongs, only Defendants’ video editing.

1 shown at all in the segment discussing ISIS and Al-Qaeda. There is no reasonable 2 implication that Plaintiff himself is being equated with terrorists or their actions.

3 Third, it is unreasonable to read an implication that the criticisms of former Dr.
4 Porter’s “fright experiments” extended to Plaintiff. Porter was originally brought to 5 NXIVM to see “how well the curriculum was working,” and the FAC alleges that 6 Plaintiff worked with Porter to help people with Tourette’s, and they had “great 7 success doing so.” FAC ¶ 51; RJN, Ex. 1, Ep. 2 at 29:43. As a counterbalance, the 8 Series goes on to describe Porter’s other work with NXIVM that kept getting “more 9 and more extreme”: “fright experiments” that subjected women to gruesome videos, 10 including actual footage of a cartel dismembering five women. RJN, Ex. 1, Ep. 2 at 11 30:54. The expert opinion commentary in the Series expressing horror at the 12 unethical experiments, drawing parallels to Nazi doctors, refers only to Porter’s 13 “fright experiments.” The commentary does not refer to Plaintiff or his Tourette’s 14 work as “horrific” or “unconscionable” and does not state or imply that Plaintiff 15 knew about or supported Porter’s “fright experiments.” RJN, Ex. 1, Ep. 2 at 31:35.
16 In the epilogue to Episode Four, the Series notes that Porter has since had his medical 17 license revoked. RJN, Ex. 1, Ep. 4 at 1:18:21; Ex. 6 (NY State license record).

18 Fourth, it is unreasonable to claim that a clip showing Plaintiff standing in the 19 audience of a Raniere seminar implies that he was “receiving orders from Raniere to 20 kill someone and that such actions are justified” much less that Raniere is “giving 21 Plaintiff specific instructions to kill someone specifically.” FAC ¶¶ 58–59 (emphasis 22 added). As Plaintiff alleges, the Series introduces the segment as being an “Ethicist 23 Course” seminar, examining why someone might condone violent acts if they had 24 certain goals. RJN Ex. 1, Ep. 2 at 39:44; Cf. FAC ¶¶ 55, 58. Viewed as a whole, it is 25 unreasonable to allege that the segment implies that Plaintiff is receiving direct orders 26 to kill. It is framed as a seminar on ethics, and Plaintiff is briefly seen as just one of 27 many audience members listening to Raniere, not an individual receiving direct 28 orders to kill. RJN Ex. 1, Ep. 2 at 39:44, 38:35.

1 Fifth, it is unreasonable to allege that drawing parallels between NXIVM and 2 other cult-like organizations implied that Plaintiff himself would “commit murder or 3 suicide.” FAC ¶ 62. As Plaintiff alleges, the Series shows various experts pondering 4 where Raniere was “really leading” NXIVM and raising concerns about the actions of 5 past cult-like groups with leaders who demanded fierce loyalty. RJN, Ex. 1, Ep. 2 at 6 40:34; Cf. FAC ¶ 59. Plaintiff is not shown or named in this montage. The segment 7 is sharing the viewpoints of various experts who have studied other cult-like 8 groups—like the Branch Davidians of Waco and Heaven’s Gate—drawing parallels 9 between Raniere’s coaching and early-stage actions those groups’ leaders. See id. at 10 40:14. However, it is unreasonable to read into this speculation about Raniere’s 11 intentions an implication that Plaintiff was therefore “a potential murderer on 12 command” who was being trained “to kill someone specifically.” FAC ¶¶ 59, 84.

13 Plaintiff’s implication claims draw conclusions from 45 seconds of four hours 14 of video that, in context, convey different meanings than what Plaintiff alleges. The 15 implications that Plaintiff claims are simply not reasonably supported by the content 16 of the Series. While Plaintiff may not like that he was briefly shown in the Series, 17 “[d]efamation actions cannot be based on snippets taken out of context.” Balzaga, 18 173 Cal. App. 4th at 1338. The purported implications here are even more 19 unreasonable than those rejected as a matter of law in Forsher, Alsze and Balzaga.

20 2. The Purportedly Defamatory Implications Are Not “Of and 21 Concerning” Plaintiff Directly or by “Clear Implication.”

22 A defamation plaintiff cannot “constitutionally establish liability” unless the 23 statements at issue are “of and concerning” him either by name or by “clear 24 implication.” Blatty v. New York Times Co., 42 Cal. 3d 1033, 1042–44 (1986); 25 Ferlauto v. Hamsher, 74 Cal. App. 4th 1394, 1404 (1999) (same). Here, the 26 purportedly defamatory implications fail because, even if they exist in some form, 27 they are not directly or by “clear implication” about or “of and concerning” Plaintiff.
 28 The first statement about men’s “primitive” need to “conquer” women reflects poorly on convicted sex trafficker Raniere. FAC ¶ 44. There is no “clear implication” that Plaintiff endorses Raniere’s comments about “sexual violence against women.” Compare RJN, Ex. 1 with FAC ¶¶ 70(I), 84. Likewise, there is no “clear implication” that Plaintiff accepted and followed Raniere’s alleged “orders” to “kill someone” or become a “potential murderer on command.” Compare RJN, Ex. 1 with FAC ¶¶ 70(V), 84. Similarly, the opinions offered from cult experts about “cult indoctrination,” “weapon[izing]” followers and Nazi experimentation are not, by clear implication, about Plaintiff. Compare RJN, Ex. 1 with FAC ¶¶ 70(II, III, IV), 84. Rather, they are about Raniere and Porter. For this additional, constitutionally based reason, Plaintiff’s defamation claims must fail.

3. Even if the Purported Implications Concerned Plaintiff, the Defamation Claims Still Fail as a Matter of Law.

Defendants maintain that there are no express or implied defamatory statements about Plaintiff in the Series. If, however, the Court concludes that some or all of the purported implications are both reasonable and clear, Plaintiff’s defamation claims still fail as a matter of law.

a. The Alleged Implications Are Not Actionable Because They Do Not Convey Verifiable Statements of Fact.

The U.S. Supreme Court has made clear that the First Amendment limits defamation plaintiffs to complaints about verifiable facts. Milkovich v. Lorain Journal Co., 497 U.S. 1, 20 (1990). Statements that “cannot ‘reasonably [be] interpreted as stating actual facts about an individual’ are not actionable. Id. (quoting Hustler Magazine, Inc. v. Falwell, 485 U.S. 46, 50 (1988)). “[R]hetorical hyperbole,’ ‘vigorous epithet[s],’ ‘lusty and imaginative expression[s] of contempt,’ and language used ‘in a loose, figurative sense’ have all been accorded constitutional protection.” Ferlauto, 74 Cal. App. 4th at 1401 (citing Greenbelt Publ. Assn. v. Bresler, 398 U.S. 6, 13–14 (1970); Letter Carriers v. Austin, 418 U.S. 264, 284, 286 (1974)). Indeed, “[e]ven if they are objectively unjustified or made in bad faith,

1 publications which are statements of opinion rather than fact cannot form the basis
2 for a libel action.” Campanelli v. Regents of Univ. of Calif., 44 Cal. App. 4th 572, 3 578 (1996) (emphasis in original).

4 The issue of whether a statement is a factual assertion or nonactionable opinion 5 or hyperbole “is a question of law to be decided by the court.” Baker v. Los Angeles 6 Herald Examiner, 42 Cal.3d 254, 260 (1986); see also Herring Networks, 8 F.4th at 7 1157 (same); Info. Control Corp. v. Genesis One Comput. Corp., 611 F.2d 781, 783 8 (9th Cir. 1980) (“The determination of whether an allegedly defamatory statement is 9 a statement of fact or statement of opinion is a question of law.”).

10 The Ninth Circuit employs a three-part test to determine whether a statement 11 implies a factual assertion or merely conveys protected opinion or hyperbole.
12 Underwager v. Channel 9 Australia, 69 F.3d 361, 366 (9th Cir. 1995); see also 13 Partington v. Bugliosi, 56 F.3d 1147, 1153 (9th Cir. 1994). First, the court must 14 examine the statements in their “broad context, which includes the general tenor of 15 the entire work, the subject of the statements, the setting, and the format of the work.”
16 Underwager, 69 F.3d at 366. Second, the court must examine the “specific context 17 and content of the statements, analyzing the extent of figurative or hyperbolic 18 language used and the reasonable expectations of the audience in that particular 19 situation.” Id. Third, the court must examine “whether the statement itself is 20 sufficiently factual to be susceptible of being proved true or false.” Id. If a 21 “reasonable factfinder” could not conclude that the contested statement “implies an 22 assertion of objective fact” then the defamation claim “is foreclosed by the First 23 Amendment.” Herring Networks, 8 F.4th at 1153, 1157 (granting anti-SLAPP 24 motion as a matter of law where the defendants’ broadcast stated that the plaintiff 25 “really literally [was] paid Russian propaganda”). Under this strict constitutional test, 26 Plaintiff’s defamation claims are barred.

i. The Broad Context of the Series.

The broad context and general tenor of the Series favors a finding that the allegedly defamatory implications are not actionable. “Where potentially defamatory statements are published in a . . . setting in which the audience may anticipate efforts by the parties to persuade others to their positions by use of epithets, fiery rhetoric or hyperbole, language which generally might be considered as statements of fact may well assume the character of statements of opinion.” Ferlauto, 74 Cal. App. 4th at 1401–02. Indeed, the use of “epithets, fiery rhetoric or hyperbole,” and “colorful commentary,” even on a news show, supports a finding of non-actionability, and “negates the impression that [the speaker] impl[ied] a false assertion of fact.” Herring Networks, 8 F.4th at 1157–58 (quoting Info. Control Corp., 611 F.2d at 784 and Partington, 56 F.3d at 1154). Here, the Series is a documentary exposé focusing on the experiences of India Oxenberg as a vehicle to reveal and criticize the inner workings and nefarious dealings of NXIVM as a cult-like organization. See generally RJN, Ex. 1. The Series is unabashedly critical of NXIVM and its leaders and builds to a climax where several of the leaders are prosecuted and convicted of serious crimes. Id. While the Series occasionally gives a nod to those, like Plaintiff, who extol NXIVM’s benefits, see, e.g., FAC ¶¶ 20–32, the broad context and general tenor of the Series treats NXIVM harshly with first person accounts of the damage it caused. See Partington, 56 F.3d at 1154 (critical accounts of controversial trial lend themselves to finding of non-actionable opinion).

ii. The Specific Context of the Material at Issue.

The specific context of the allegedly defamatory implications also supports a finding of non-actionability. “Loose, figurative [and] hyperbolic” language supports the conclusion that a statement is constitutionally protected. Milkovich, 497 U.S. at 21. Courts must look at the language to discern whether the specific context for the publication is “figurative or hyperbolic.” Underwager, 69 F.3d at 367. Here, the alleged implications are all presented as opinions – sometimes interlaced with

1 epithets, fiery rhetoric, hyperbole and colorful commentary – about NXIVM. Four of 2 the five alleged implications are connected to people identified as experts on cults, 3 and their opinions about NXIVM. See, e.g., FAC ¶¶ 46–48 (quoting “‘cult experts’” 4 Rick Ross and Steven Hassan likening NXIVM’s “mind-control” techniques to those 5 used by “ISIS and Al-Qaeda”), ¶ 51 (quoting another “‘cult expert,’ Dr. Janja 6 Lalich,” referencing Nazi experimentation when discussing NXIVM’s Porter), ¶¶ 56– 7 57 (Ross’ further reference to NXIVM’s destructive methods), ¶ 70 (II–V). See 8 Partington, 56 F.3d at 1156 (“[I]f it is plain that the speaker is expressing a 9 subjective view, an interpretation, a theory, conjecture, or surmise, rather than 10 claiming to be in possession of objectively verifiable facts, the statement is not 11 actionable.”). The Series features professed experts to opine as to why they view 12 NXIVM as dangerous. See NXIVM Corp. v. Sutton, 2007 WL 1876496 (D.N.J. June 13 27, 2007), at *12 (holding that readers would understand Ross’ critiques of NXIVM 14 offer particular viewpoints). In doing so, the experts are making fiery, rhetorical – 15 and admittedly hyperbolic – references to some of the world’s worst organizations of 16 the last century: the Nazis, ISIS and Al-Qaeda. NXIVM, in turn, is depicted in the 17 Series as declaring at least one of the experts, Ross, as a “devil” and a “suppressive,” 18 which is “the worst possible thing that can occur.” RJN, Ex. 1, Ep. 2 at 32:14. The 19 fifth allegedly defamatory implication references Raniere’s “lusty and imaginative 20 expressions of contempt” for women. Ferlauto, 74 Cal. App. 4th at 1401 (quoting 21 Letter Carriers, 418 U.S. at 286). While misogynistic, Raniere’s comments are his 22 impression of what the “primitive parts” of men want. FAC ¶ 70(I).

23 iii. The Language of the Material at Issue.

24 Even if Raniere’s and the experts’ statements can be understood to imply 25 qualities about Plaintiff – which Defendants dispute is reasonable or clear as a matter 26 of law – the language itself is not to be taken literally as being provably true or false.
 27 There is no verifiable statement or implication that Plaintiff is a Nazi. In Koch v.
 28 Goldway, 817 F.2d 507, 508–10 (9th Cir. 1987), the Ninth Circuit rejected a 1 defamation claim where the defendant suggested that his political opponent was 2 actually a missing Nazi war criminal by the same name. The court held the 3 suggestion was rhetorical hyperbole. Here, the expert’s analogy of former Dr. Porter 4 to Nazi doctors is not meant to suggest Porter is a Nazi (and not at all meant to apply 5 to Plaintiff), nor is the reference to ISIS or Al-Qaeda meant to be a literal, verifiable 6 label. See also Buckley v. Littell, 539 F.2d 882, 893–95 (2d Cir. 1976) (holding that 7 the term “fascist” could not be regarded as a statement of fact); Moyer v. Amador 8 Valley Jt. Union High Sch. Dist., 225 Cal. App. 3d 720, 724–26 (1990) (statements 9 that express “subjective judgment by the speaker,” including that the plaintiff 10 “terrorized” others, are not actionable). In NXIVM, a federal court in New Jersey 11 dismissed NXIVM’s trade disparagement claim on a Rule 12(c) motion, holding that 12 “when an individual states or opines that a group constitutes a ‘cult’ or is ‘cult-like,’ 13 no verifiable fact is communicated to the listener or reader.” 2007 WL 1876496 at 14 *11. Here, the experts’ low opinions of NXIVM and Raniere’s desires to 15 “weaponize” his followers, as well as Raniere’s opinions of the “primitive parts” of 16 men, are not presented as verifiable facts. Even if they could be applied to Plaintiff – 17 which is neither reasonable nor clear – they are still presented as constitutionally 18 protected opinions or hyperbole critical of those who support NXIVM’s methods.

19 Finally, even if there were such a literal analogy (there is not) the broad and 20 specific contexts still support a finding of non-actionability. In Herring Networks, 21 the plaintiff was undisputedly accused by Defendants of “really literally [being] paid 22 Russian propaganda” during a news segment. 8 F.4th at 1153. Nevertheless, the 23 Ninth Circuit held that the broad and specific contexts supported a finding that the 24 statement was rhetorical hyperbole and therefore not actionable. Id. at 1160.

25 Under the Ninth Circuit’s three-part test, none of the alleged implications – 26 even if they were found to exist – can support a cause of action for defamation here.

27 B. Plaintiff’s Ancillary Claims Also Fail as a Matter of Law.

28 Plaintiff’s ancillary claims for false light, intentional infliction of emotional 1 distress and appropriation of name and likeness also fail as a matter of law.

2 1. The Ancillary Claims Are Duplicative and Must Be Dismissed.

3 When “claims for invasion of privacy and emotional distress are based on the 4 same factual allegations as those of a simultaneous libel claim, they are superfluous 5 and must be dismissed.” Couch v. San Juan Unif. Sch. Dist., 33 Cal. App. 4th 1491, 6 1504 (1995) (emphasis added); see also Rudwall v. BlackRock, Inc., 289 Fed. Appx.
7 240, 241 (9th Cir. 2008) (same, quoting Couch). For example, in Couch, the court 8 dismissed false light and emotional distress claims that were based on the same 9 allegedly tortious conduct as a simultaneous defamation claim. Couch, 33 Cal. App.
10 4th at 1504. Here, Plaintiff’s two invasion of privacy claims and his claim for 11 intentional infliction of emotional distress (“IIED”) are based on the same underlying 12 facts as his defamation claims. Compare FAC ¶¶ 70–96 (defamation claims) with id.
13 ¶¶ 98, 100–103 (appropriation claim based on allegedly “defamatory” statements and 14 implications in Series using his name and image, which are purportedly harming his 15 “reputation”), ¶¶ 111–116 (false light claim is based on allegedly “false” material that 16 is the same as the bases for the defamation claims), ¶¶ 121–124 (IIED claim is based 17 on the same allegedly “defamatory content” and “defamatory statements”).
18 Plaintiff’s ancillary claims are duplicative and must be dismissed.

19 2. The Ancillary Claims Fail Because the Defamation Claims Fail.

20 The First Amendment circumscribes “all claims whose gravamen is the alleged 21 injurious falsehood of a statement.” Blatty, 42 Cal. 3d at 1042–43 (emphasis added).
22 Thus, “[t]he collapse of the defamation claim spells the demise of all other causes of 23 action in the same complaint which allegedly arise from the same publication.” 24 Gilbert, 147 Cal. App. 4th at 34 (emphasis added) (dismissing defamation and IIED 25 claims). This is because, “liability cannot be imposed on any theory for what has 26 been determined to be a constitutionally protected publication.” Reader’s Digest 27 Assn. v. Super. Ct., 37 Cal.3d 244, 265 (1984) (emphasis added) (dismissing 28 defamation, false light and IIED claims on the same constitutional grounds). Plaintiff

1 cannot avoid the strictures of the defamation claims by pleading alternative causes of 2 action. Just as the defamation claims fail, so, too, must the ancillary claims.

3 3. The “Appropriation” Claim Also Fails for Independent Reasons.

4 Plaintiff does not articulate if his third cause of action for “appropriation of 5 name or likeness” is a statutory or common law claim, but it fails in either event.

6 a. The Series Is an Expressive, Not Commercial, Work.

7 A plaintiff alleging common law and/or statutory misappropriation of likeness 8 under California Civil Code § 3344 is required to “establish a direct connection 9 between the use of [her] name or likeness and a commercial purpose.” Polydoros v.
10 Twentieth Cent. Fox Film Corp., 67 Cal. App. 4th 318, 322 (1997) (emphasis in 11 original); see also Civ. C. § 3344(a).⁹ Claims for misappropriation of image will not 12 stand in California unless the image was used “exclusively for ... commercial gain.” 13 Leidholt v. L.F.P., Inc., 860 F.2d 890, 895 (9th Cir. 1988) (emphasis added); see also 14 Brewer v. Hustler Magazine, Inc., 749 F.2d 527, 530 (9th Cir. 1984) (Civil Code § 15 3344 “is limited to appropriation for purposes of advertising or solicitation of 16 purchases”). Expressive material does not lose its heightened protections merely 17 because it is sold for a profit. See, e.g., Leidholt, 860 F.2d at 895 (“the fact that [a 18 magazine] is operated for a profit does not extend a commercial purpose to every 19 article within it”). Plaintiff’s third cause of action is based on Defendants’ use of his 20 likeness and name “in their series.” FAC ¶ 98; see also id. ¶ 101. Such uses serve an 21 expressive, not a commercial purpose, and cannot support a misappropriation claim.

22 b. Defendants’ Uses Are Protected Speech.

23 Civil Code § 3344 contains an important exception: “a use of a . . . likeness in 24 ⁹ The U.S. Supreme Court defines commercial speech as that which “does ‘no more 25 than propose a commercial transaction.’” Va. State Bd. v. Va. Citizens Consumer 26 Council, Inc., 425 U.S. 748, 762 (1976); Central Hudson Gas & Elec. Co. v. Public 27 Serv. Comm’n, 447 U.S. 557, 561 (1980) (defining commercial speech as “expression 28 is not ‘purely commercial’ – that is, if it does more than propose a commercial transaction – then it is entitled to full First Amendment protection.” Mattel, Inc. v.

MCA Records, Inc., 296 F.3d 894, 906 (9th Cir. 2002).

connection with any . . . public affairs . . . shall not constitute a use for which consent is required.” Cal. Civ. C. § 3344(d). Similarly, under California’s common law cause of action for commercial misappropriation “a defense under the First Amendment is provided where the publication or dissemination of matters is ‘in the public interest.’” Daly v. Viacom, Inc., 238 F. Supp.2d 1118, 1122 (N.D. Cal. 2002); see also Montana v. San Jose Mercury News, Inc., 34 Cal. App. 4th 790, 793 (1995) (“[l]ike the common law cause of action, the statutory cause of action specifically exempts from liability the use of a name or likeness in connection with the reporting of a matter in the public interest”). Civil Code § 3344(d)’s “public affairs” exception and the common law’s “public interest” exception are both given wide latitude in order to protect free expression. Baugh v. CBS, Inc., 828 F. Supp. 745, 754 (N.D. Cal. 1993) (emphasis added). In “cases involving common law privacy and appropriation,” as well as Civil Code § 3344(d)’s immunity for matters of “public affairs,” there exists a protection for what “the public is interested in and constitutionally entitled to know about,” such as “things, people, and events that affect it.” Id. For example, the Ninth Circuit recognized the immunity for a documentary television series on gangs in Gangland, 730 F.3d at 960–61, and the Court of Appeal recognized it for surfing, Dora v. Frontline Video, Inc., 15 Cal. App. 4th 536, 544–45 (1993), and baseball, Gionfriddo v. Major League Baseball, 94 Cal. App. 4th 400, 405–06 (2001). Here, the Series’ discussion of NXIVM is likewise protected speech on matters of public interest and public affairs. See Section IV, infra. For that additional reason, Plaintiff’s third cause of action fails.

VI. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Defendants respectfully request that their anti-SLAPP motion be granted with prejudice and without leave to amend.
